

THEATRE BURNS — Firemen are shown fighting this blaze which destroyed the Milam Theatre in downtown Cameron Saturday morning about 1:15 a. m. The three-alarm fire, was fought for several hours and only smoke and water damage was suffered by adjoining buildings.

Sombody once said (perhaps more than once) that Cameron was a quiet place in the summer and fairly quiet the year 'round. The news these past weeks rather belies that idea.

We recall a Western Week with thousands, a bank opening, a church dedication, a murder trial, two major fires, two major accidents with two dead and five injured, queen contests, accidental shooting, et al.

That's a pretty good monthful.

102 - 102 - 102

As a matter of fact, it seems that people have been taking vacations like mad in the past week or so to break away from the local pace, saying something like:

He: "Man, I'm going to go somewhere and rest for a week or so, some place quiet and uneventful."

Me: "Where would that be? A quiet lake? Fishin' on the river?"

He: "Nah, Dallas or Houston. These cities are a lot quieter than Cameron when you haul into a nice air - conditioned hotel or motel room somewhere and sleep for a week."

102 - 102 - 102

The President gave a rather disconcerting speech to those reservists who are not on active duty, but who are subject to recall. I know one fellow who got his discharge in June after eight years. I'm sure he's hoping that extra month is enough.

HEATONS VISITS HERE

July Draft Up In Milam As Mobilization Called

First Effects Not Yet Felt In County Area

President Kennedy's speech Tuesday night had no immediate effect on the Milam County area, but the July 21 pre-induction physical call was for 15 men, five times the recent average.

The President Tuesday night on radio and television said he was ordering doubling and tripling of draft calls and adding 232,000 men to the Armed Forces.

His speech was a major talk on U. S. position in the West Berlin crisis. He set a $3.5 billion request before Congress Wednesday to pay for additional men and materials to strengthen U. S. forces.

Mrs. Albert Slovak, secretary of the Milam Draft Board, indicated there was an increase due in monthly draft calls.

The 15 - man contingent requested July 21 was the largest number in two and one - half years, she said.

Draft age is now at the 24-year level. Twenty - three year olds will be the next category. Mrs. Slovak noted. All present policy is subject to change in line with the President's address Tuesday.

President Kennedy indicated that reserve tours would be extended and some individual reservists, reserve units, not National Guard units, would be called back in the Army and Air Force.

Capt. J. T. Terry, commander of the Milam Company C, 3rd Medium Tank Bn. said last week that the 49th Armored has not been mentioned for active duty, though a regular Army unit, the 2nd Armored, at Fort Hood, was mentioned in the President's talk.

James Luckey, Civil Defense instructor, told The Herald that civil defense course will start 7:30 p. m. Friday as another in a series of courses begun last year. A civil defense course is now underway in Rockdale, he said.

The President's speech included plans for an additional $207 million for a "new start" in civil defense. Emphasis would be on identifying, marking and improving buildings used for shelter throughout the nation.

Blame for the Berlin crisis was placed on Moscow as President Kennedy called for the buildup of conventional forces to avoid choice "between humiliation or a nuclear action."

No plans for increased taxes were made, but the President said urged closing of tax loopholes on expense accounts, overseas income, dividends, interest and operations.

Guilty Verdict, 40 Years

Shuffield Awaits Appeal

Hubert W. Shuffield, 66, of Cameron, convicted last Thursday of the murder of Jesse Kirk, Jr., 44, is waiting out time in County Jail for appeal of his case.

The 12 - man Milam District petit jury deliberated an hour and 50 minutes last Thursday evening, returned a verdict of guilty and assessed a 40 - year prison term for Shuffield.

Following the verdict, defense attorneys Charlie Smith, Jr., and Edgar Hoppe announced a motion for new trial and appeal to the State Court of Criminal Appeals, Austin.

Judge W. C. Wallace remanded Shuffield to the county sheriff's custody until appeal bond is set. Defense attorneys had 10 days in which to file a motion for a new trial, a legal step necessary before the appeal for review goes to the higher court.

Shuffield seemed passive at the reading of the verdict and sentence. He lighted a cigarette, one of dozens he smoked during the four-day trial.

Members of his family, sitting in a group throughout the trial, were the last to leave the courtroom. Several were visibly shaken.

It was dramatic as were the two days of testimony.

The case went to the jury at 5:15 p. m. Without recess, the jury returned to the half - empty courtroom at 7:05. They found Shuffield guilty of murder with malice aforethought and passed sentence at 40 years.

He praised the work of the City Council in dealing with and solving several recent city projects including drainage problems and sewerage service to northwest Cameron.

3 ROK Officers Visit Cameron

Three South Korean Army officers recently visited one afternoon in Cameron.

Their English was as skillful as Texas was impressive to their view. Capt. Tae Dong Ha, of Seoul and his friends, Capt. Ou and 1st Lt. Choi were guests of Jerald W. Hobbs, his Korean wife, Mai, and Mrs. Una Manous, Hobbs' mother.

"We were greatly impressed with the size of Texas," Capt. Tae said. "But perhaps the most thrilling experience was a roller coaster ride in an amusement park in San Antonio."

But if Capt. Tae was impressed with the Lone Star State, his audience was impressed with his observations and experiences.

He was a former employee of the American Embassy in Seoul, an interpreter in the South Korean Army, and master of Japanese Korean and English languages. His companions also spoke Japanese the language for 46 years of Japanese occupation. The other captain, about 30, was planning to become a diplomat after his tour of army duty.

The trio of ROK officers had been in a special ordinance course at Aberdeen Proving Grounds, Maryland. Capt. Tae said they were among a number of ROK officers who would take the training to other Korean trainees when they returned to Korea.

In speaking of Korea, Capt. Tae and the Japanese dominated the country most of the 20th century, requiring the national language to be Korean and forbidding its use in the schools or public life. After World War II, it was allowed to flourish once more.

Capt. Tae is a Buddhist, Capt. Ou was a Catholic and Lt. Choi does not profess any specific religion, Tae said.

Tae knew Hobbs, whose wife came to the United States with him in 1959. The Hobbs are now living in Bryan where he teaches school. The trio of Korean officers traveled by bus to Bryan.

"To see the country," Tae said, smiling. Asked about the recent change in Korean government leadership, Tae compared it with the change of Pakistani government where a firm hand was needed for control of domestic affairs.

The Korean officers were going to proceed to the West Coast by bus where they would fly back to Korea.

Report From The Confederacy

South Wins At Manassas; Federals Flee Battlefield

By Robert Stonedale
MANASSAS JUNCTION, Virginia, July 21, 1861 - Ten hours of brutal struggle raged across the banks of Bull Run in Northern Virginia today as 60,000 American soldiers fought the greatest battle ever waged on this continent. Throughout the long day great columns of densely packed infantry smashed and tore at each other while explosive shells cut men to ribbons and fired the homes of peaceful farmers.

The total of slaughtered, mangled and captured soldiers in the two armies, exceeds 5000.

A few hours ago the terrifying battle cry of charging Confederate regiments rose above the screams of the wounded and heralded the triumph of the South as the Federals were driven from the field in a complete and disgraceful rout.

The day began much less favorable for the Confederate forces. The War Department ordered Brig. Gen. Joseph E. Johnston's Army of the Shenandoah to the support of General Beauregard's army at Manassas three days ago, but when the battle opened this morning, only a portion of Johnston's men had arrived.

General Beauregard had planned to begin battle with an attack on the Federal left wing, but the movement was delayed by poor staff work and the aggressive Federals struck the lightly defended Confederate left flank first at 9 o'clock this morning.

Federals Struck Hard
Dense blue columns, including highly trained infantry and artillery units of the Regular U. S. Army, crossed Bull Run beyond the Confederate flank and pressed forward to the roar of heavy guns.

Colonel N. G. Evans hurriedly threw 1100 men of the First Louisiana and the Fourth South Carolina across the path of the huge Federal Column, let this brave handful struggle alone against the full weight of the attack until Brig. Gen. Bernard E. Bee rushed the Second Mississippi, the Fourth Alabama the Seventh and Eighth Georgia and part of the Eleventh Mississippi to the crest of Matthews Hill.

With the aid of Hampton's Legion, Bee's small force brought the bluecoats to a temporary standstill but was shattered in the process. As the survivors made their way back to the next thin line on Henry Hill, the Federals renewed their advance.

A great cloud of smoke from thousands of rifles and dozens of cannon began to rise over the battlefield as disaster threatened the Southern Army. Some of the men grew demoralized and staggered away from the front where their more resolute comrades were being slaughtered.

The only intact Confederate force remaining on that part of the field was the First Brigade of Johnston's army commanded by Brig. Gen. Thomas J. Jackson. Jackson had placed his men on the protected side of the slope, where they waited calmly for the battle to reach them. The remnants of Bee's and Evans' commands assembled on the flanks of Jackson's waiting warriors.

"There is Jackson standing like a stone wall!" General Bee shouted to his men. "Let us determine to die here, and we will conquer. Follow me!" Bee's men rallied on the Virginians while the Fourth Alabama, having lost all of its officers, was led into position by General Beauregard in person.

Cavalry Charge Helped
Up to this point, the Federals had carried everything before them. Then two powerful batteries of Federal artillery dashed forward, unlimbered and directed a scalding fire into the waiting Confederate line.

The bucking cannon sent death scything through the gray regiments, felling officers and men in struggling heaps but the Union gunners had ventured too far too fast. Their infantry support was delayed by a thundering charge on the part of the First Virginia Cavalry led by Lt. Col. J. E. B. Stuart and the Thirty-third Virginia of Jackson's Brigade let out a roar and sprang at the guns. Their attack slaughtered the Federal artillerymen almost to a man. The remaining regiments poured a hot fire into the other advanced gun positions and silenced the enemy batteries for a time.

By this time, Gen. Beauregard and Gen. Johnston were sending regiment after regiment from the right wing in the hope of reinforcing the left before it was overwhelmed.

As the first of these arrived, the gray line surged forward and drove the enemy back. Deafening waves of sound rolled over the plateau as the ground shook to the right. Then Union reinforcements arrived and pushed the Confederates back up the hill, but could not gain the crest.

Hours of furious fighting had left rows of bodies scattered across the slopes. In the space of a few minutes, Col. Francis Bartow of the seventh Georgia fell, Gen. Bee was killed, Col. F. J. Thomas died at the crest and Col. C. F. Fisher fell at the head of the Sixth North Carolina.

But as the battle swayed on Henry Hill, the Federal line was being extended to the west beyond the Confederate line. Just when it seemed the Confederate position would be outflanked, the last of Johnston's men arrived on the final speeding train from the Valley and another brigade from the right wing took position on the extreme left. The last available man was in line. It was 4 p. m.

Federals Caved In
Quickly the news that the flank was safe raced along the Confederate front. The men began firing faster and here and there a company pushed a few feet further into the Federal fire. The sweating Southern gunners slammed charge after charge into their smoking cannon as the enemy shells began to slacken. Suddenly a tremor ran down the line.

Regiments and then entire brigades began to move forward. Color-bearers shook their banners out against the lowering sun as a faint high shout rose over the gray regiments. It became a chorus and then a blood stirring scream as the battered but inspired Southern army slammed forward in an irresistible attack.

Thousands of powder-stained men halted to fire into the enemy and then rushed forward again and again. The steady roar of the battle rose to hurricane level. The enemy faced the savage charge for a few moments and then the front began to crumble. The attack became furious pursuit as panic took command of the Federal army. Union regiments raced from the field abandoning their rifles, throwing away their weapons, leaving wounded and wagons to the Confederates who took vengeance until their ammunition and strength were both exhausted.

At this moment, the road to Washington is choked with demoralized Northern soldiers hurrying toward the safety of the Capitol's forts.

TEXAS LAWMEN NOAH SMITHWICK the "Peaceful" Ranger

"With the courage of his convictions..."

In 1827, a peace-loving blacksmith of 19 years drifted into Texas. He soon found anything but peace. As a skilled gunsmith and armorer, Noah was on hand to prepare the fighting hardware for the Texas revolutionary battle of Concepcion, and to participate with enthusiasm. Later he was one of the San Jacinto combatants who pursued the retreating Mexicans far south of the Rio Grande. After that he joined the Texas Rangers for a very active two years of frontier duty, leaving the service in 1838 when the force was disbanded temporarily. Then, as a justice of the peace at Webber's Prairie, a Lieutenant of Texas Militia, armorer at Fort Croghan, life continued in a fairly unpeaceful way until 1861. Because he opposed secession so strongly, Smithwick shook the dust of Texas for California. History does not record his later years, but he found time to record a great deal of history -- his highly colorful reminiscences of early days in the Lone Star State.

Texas never could have become a great state without the courage and devotion to duty of her lawmen -- nor without the commerce and industry that have provided prosperity and the good life. The brewing industry, too, has had a part in this development. Providing payrolls and the pleasure of moderate beverages, revenue and relaxation -- "beer belongs." The United States Brewers Association is constantly at work with brewers, wholesalers, retailers and local authorities to assure the sale of beer and ale under pleasant, orderly and law-abiding conditions.

Barbers Nearing Fifty Year Mark

By Robert Mann

Fifty years in business together is a true test of man's loyalty to a friend; Charles F. Swift and W. A. Heath have passed this test with flying colors after being barbers partners for nearly half a century.

Their present barber shop is located on Central Avenue, directly south of the Milam County Courthouse. They have been constituents in this building since December of 1923.

Heath, a graduate of Houston Barber College, came to Cameron in 1911 and went to work in a barbershop located across from what is now Citizens National Bank. After a few months of employment there, he bartered until 1913 in the Old Auditorium Shop located in the building that now houses the AAA office.

Swift is the second barber in his family and learned the trade from the first, his father, G. F. Swift, a former native of Cameron. He has been cutting hair since the age of thirteen.

Swift and Heath met in 1916 while working in the Auditorium shop and decided to go into business for themselves. Together with four other auditorium barbers they established their present shop.

"At that time," Heath recalled, "we were getting thirty-five cents for a haircut and fifteen cents for a shave. We didn't take in much money, but a fellow could get a square meal for a quarter then."

Neither of the two ever kept a count on the number of heads they have cut but agreed, "We've cut many and many a head of hair."

"Oxshier Smith is the only person who was in business when I came here in 1911, stayed in business, and is still in business," Heath said.

There have been a few like A. F. Marek who was in business, went out, and came back in, but Smith is the only constant operator since I've been here."

Swift pointed out an old clock in the back of the shop that has been there since 1902. The tile doesn't have a crack or defacement of any kind. There are three hat racks and an old desks that have been there since 1902 also. The present barber chairs are about fifteen years old.

Talking about the town's history, Heath said the first white barber in Cameron was Jim Reno. He had started cutting hair in a livery stable using a chair in a stall as his working quarters. "By 1911 there were six barber shops in Cameron though," added Swift.

"We've had a lot of shoeshine boys in and out of here the past thirty-eight years," said Heath, "but I guess the best one we ever had was Hubert Nelson. He was with us for nineteen years, up until he passed away about six weeks ago."

The talk switched to newspapering when Swift mentioned he had a close relative that established a paper in Jacksboro, Texas near Mineral Wells. Then Heath talked for a few minutes on the Herald's former editor, J. B. White.

Yes, nearly half a century of working side-by-side hasn't harmed these two men's respect for one another and after observing the conversation and actions of the two for half an hour, it's not hard to picture them fifty years from now still cutting hair side by side in the "ole barber shop across from the courthouse."

CAMERON HERALD VIEW ON SPORTS

—WITH ROBERT MANN—

With the death of Ty Cobb last week, so died an era.

An era of professional baseball where the knocks were many, the hits plentiful and the dollars few. Cobb, labeled as the "greatest of them all" amassed over his twenty - years of baseball a list of records that no player today can match or even hope to match. Caperton, Mrs. "Edwin Brod and is a feat in itself that distinguishes him above all major league batters of any era.

On the basepaths he was greased lightning, in the field he was a defensive genius and in the hearts of not only Detroit, but baseball fans everywhere, he was number one.

Symbolic of the aggressive ball-playing that went out with the horse and buggy between 1910 and 1920, he was known, as some still remember, for his confidence that was topped only by Dizzy Dean's, for his daring equal to that of Pepper Martin and for his long-ball hitting topped in consistency only by Babe Ruth himself.

His twenty - two years of baseball is a feat that will seldom, if ever be witnessed again, because of night games and other obstacles that shorten a ball-players active playing games.

Yes, with Ty Cobb was an era, and with the death of Ty Cobb, so died the era; but if he was young and great today as he once was, he might say "to heck with yesterday, we've got to win today."

VOS

A story was heard last week of the batter that had three balls and one strike on him. The bases were loaded and the hometown team was at bat. The game was tied at 5-5.

The batsman was a large powerful man but the nervous type, especially when he had a full count on him, so league umpires were careful as to call the close pitches balls to avoid trouble from the bullying batsman.

Well, it just so happened that the ump at this particular game was a small, not very strong fellow, so when the pitcher threw a fast ball down the center of the plate that the batsman failed to swing at, the mild - mannered ump was heard to say, "Two".

With a gleam in his eye the batter turned, looking down at the small man in the blue suit and said, "Two what".

"Two close to call", answered the frightened umpire.

Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Slaughter attended the Burnet Chamber of Commerce banquet Friday evening as guests of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Slaughter of Burnet. The dinner was held in main room of Longhorn Cavern. More than 200 guests heard guest speaker Ed J. St. John, president of the Austin Chamber of Commerce.

The Embazzellers, Pin Thrashers and Wizards make up the league's bottom half.

Leo Hollas maintained his league leading 181 average. Harlen Mees is second with 180 and William Kelm third with 170.

The Knights played the best ball of the week. They rolled a second high series of 2,414 and second high single game of 895.

The Rookies had the best series with 2,424 and the Pi-E-Blurs the best game with 920. The Untouchables were third in both categories with a 2,404 series and 858 game.

Harlen Mees rolled a 558 series, and 234 high game. Doc Speer rolled a 551 series and 222 game and William Kelm was good for a 539 series and 218 game.

Yoe Summer Pupils Visit Legislature

A group of Yoe High School summer students visited the state legislature in Austin recently. The class sponsor, Max McClaren, accompanied them on the trip.

The class of Texas History students made the trip in three different cars and were shown through the house of representatives and senate by Molam County representative, Herman Yezak.

The tour consisted of a visit to the governor's office and two of the students, Margaret Nance and Bill Looney, visited the floor while the legislature was in action. The rest of the group watched from the visitors balcony.

Social Security Pays $103,264 Monthly To Milam Countians

According to the Social Security Administration, there are 2129 people in Milam County receiving social security benefits totaling $103,264.00 per month.

Payments of $64,950.00 per month are going to 1108 Milam countians receiving old-age insurance benefits, while 43 persons are receiving disability insurance benefits of $3,423.00 per month.

The remaining $34,891.00 in monthly benefits goes to 978 survivors of deceased workers and dependent wives and children of aged and disabled workers.

These social security payments are intended to replace in part earnings lost due to retirement, death, or disability of the breadwinner of the family, according to Charles E. Bass, field representative of the Temple district office. He said that by helping maintain the purchasing power of families whose income has been greatly reduced or perhaps cut off entirely, the social security program contributes materially to the economy of the community.

State 4-H Camp For Negro Members Well Underway At Huntsville

The Negro boys and girls of Milam County and other Counties over the State will have a campsite, with lodging cooking and 4-H training facilities with in the next 12 months, according to E. K. Shaw, County Extension Agent.

The 54 acre campsite has already been purchased and one which serves as an all purpose hall and mess hall near Huntsville. Sanitary facilities for both boys and girls have also been completed, with adequate shower facilities to accomodate about three-hundred.

The plan and purchase was envisioned by the State Agricultural and Home Demonstration Councils of Texas, a voluntary organization of farm men and women, that functions in cooperation with the State Extension Service of Texas.

Each year at the State Short Course for Farmers and Homemakers, funds are contributed by the County Agricultural and Home Demonstration Councils.

Each County where there is an agent employed would pay $500 over a period of one to three years for the construction of low-cost type cabins.

The Milam County Councils have already contributed $100 toward the $500 assessment and plan to pay at least one - half of the balance at this years' State Meeting.

Anyone desiring to assist in this worthy cause should contact Mrs. Reginald Snelgro or Frank Nelson County Chairmen or the Local Extension Office at 503 Scott St.

This summer, four Milam County groups from five communities have attended workshops, and participated in camping activities at the Camp. Adult representatives will visit the Camp for a cook - out during the week of the Annual Farmers Short Course at Prairie View A & M College, Texas.

A Berlin 'Brinkmanship'

The Berlin crisis, precipitated by Khrushchev, has engrossed national leadership and public opinion in a showdown at the Western gateway city.

Talks and plans for mobilizing military and industrial strengths are beyond preliminary stages, according to President Kennedy's announced program.

An inevitable test of strength and prestige approaches.

Western nations least interested in a West Berlin showdown, namely Britain and France, have no alternative. They are in the shadow of destruction. The French pale at armed West Germany, now asked to arm further; the British fear implication in a war, if touched off, certain of massive retaliation in Europe. But Britain, by necessity, leans closer to new economic ties with mainland Western Europe because her Commonwealth spells impending financial crisis at home.

These are incentives to stand with the United States and the Bonn Government at Berlin and say: "No further."

Russia, through satellite East Germany, has committed by necessity. Refugees, many the skilled and educated of East Germany, pour into West Berlin by thousands. And Western Berlin stands a resplendent tribute to free enterprise as her "Curtained" half shrinks in underdevelopment.

East Germany has provided Russia with manpower and industrial resources for post-war plunder. The spoils of World War II includes drain of East German skills. This would be true of any of the satellite nations.

Mr. Khrushchev can disavow those pledges which are chiefly for propaganda. But when the hard facts enforce Soviet need for a strong East Germany, the Soviet dictator can hardly sustain the obvious contrast, the painful losses of skilled production. At the risk of war, then, he trudges out his promise of a winter showdown in Berlin.

Observers now say that Russia, not the West, is in the bind. Without promise of Western negotiation, Russia has blundered into a real crisis, thinking perhaps that Cuba and Laos might be re-enacted.

It would be tragic indeed if Khrushchev's miscalculation of U. S. purpose should precipitate war. John Foster Dulles' "brinkmanship", a source of dread for our allies, may have passed into Khrushchev's hands.

Midnight Oil For Tax Bill

By Vern Sanford

AUSTIN — House members burned midnight oil in an effort to get a tax bill to the Senate before the mid - point of the brief 30 - day session.

In the long, long sessions and seemingly endless succession of approaches, amendments, substitutes and substitutes for the substitutes, it was often difficult to tell who was winning what. Show-down votes indicated that it is still easier for members to agree on what they don't want than on what they do.

Rejected, at least for the time being, was a package bill recommended by the Revenue and Taxation Committee. Its main money raiser was a sales tax, with exemptions, on items costing $5 or more. It also included more utilities taxes, natural gas taxes, a transfer of funds from the permanent school fund, a revised franchise tax and a book-keeping transfer.

Also turned down were proposals for a 4 per cent corporate income tax by Rep. Bob Eckhardt of Houston and a 1 per cent general sales tax by Rep. Tom Andrews of Aransas Pass.

Rep. Charles Ballman of Borger, chairman of revenue and taxation was pushing for a package bill that closely tracked Gov. Price Daniel's recommendations at the beginning of the session. It differed from the committee - written package chiefly in that it included a Pennsylvania - type sales tax, applying only to items listed in the bill.

Despite the House problems, an August 8 finish may still be possible. Senate, generally, is swifter and more nearly of one mind on money matters. It agreed on a tax bill in the regular session in approximately one - third the time spent by the House.

Hardest part is getting agreement one plan from both House and Senate - and finally - from the governor.

Fund Bill progresses

House has given second reading approval to a bill appropriating

$2,527,000,000 for the next two years

It is slightly higher than the bill passed earlier by the Senate, and eventually differences will have to be worked out by a conference committee of the two houses.

A group of conservatives in the House were foiled - at least temporarily - in an effort to but the bill by $27,000,000 through economy measures. Among items they felt could be deleted or put off were recapturing the House chamber and refinishing members' desks for $250,000 adding an office for the governor to the Governor's Mansion for $50,000 installation of a sprinkler system on the Capitol lawn for $20,000 an dseveral other expenses of that nature.

Economy group also wanted to trim back some increases in the bill for salaries and travel expenses for state personnel and eliminate paying legislators a salary for the period between November, 1960 when the annual pay amendment was approved, and the start of the session in January.

School Bills Move

A bill to provide more liberal state aid for sparsely populated school districts has been approved by the House Education Committee.

Rep. Sam F. Collins of Newton is sponsor of the measure which would provide $378,000 to pay for 90 additional teachers in rural areas. Most of the extra teachers would be for Negro schools.

Objectors to the bill said it would perpetuate the problem of having school districts too small to provide a strong school program.

On the other side of the Capitol, the Senate Education Committee gave reluctant approval to a more economical teacher pay raise plan than the Hale - Aikin plan it already had approved. Sent to the floor was a bill by Sen. Bruce Reagan of Corpus Christi which would give teachers a $600 a year raise this year, $200 more in 1963 and $200 more in 1965. Hale - Aikin provides for $810 a year more immediately.

Who Will Be First On Moon

By Cong. W. R. Poage

This morning I watched, as many of you did the launching of the second American into space. It was but a brief and fleeting voyage, but it establishes beyond doubt that man can go into space and can re - enter the earth's atmosphere. To me, it proves, if any further proof were necessary, that man will within the next few years go to the moon and return. The real question is: who will be first The USA or the USSR?

I know that there are many who ask "Why do we bother to go to the moon". I would ask, "Why did Queen Isabella sell her jewels to finance Columbus' voyage to America?" Columbus discovered nothing on that voyage but some sand bars in the Caribbean. The first man to the moon will probably bring back nothing more spectacular than a jar of dust, but who can believe that the moon and the planets will not in the rather near future contribute metals and possibly other elements which will give us a higher standard of living just as the discovery of the western hemisphere raised the standards of the old world? Who can doubt but that the research and the development of instruments involved in the first trip to the moon will give the nation which makes it a dominance in space which may well mean the complete ability to thwart any type of attack? Although we do not want to launch any attack, we cannot allow the Soviets to establish space stations from which they might destroy us.

Surely, the by - products of such research and effort will include a complete revolution in our presently known means of communication. Witness satellites Echo, Transit and a whole host of others that are bound to come. These efforts will surely mean, if not control over the weather, an entirely new understanding of weather. That there is something far more substantial than mere dreams, witness the proposal of the largest corporation in the world (the A. T. & T.) to finance a whole family of satellites for commercial purposes. No America cannot and will not be counted out of the space race. Congress and the President have recognized its importance. Just yesterday I was glad to join with a majority of both Houses in passing the Conference Report on the bills authorizing $1,800,000,000 for the beginning of this work as requested by President Kennedy.

I think it is safe to predict that the generation will see not only Coronado's children but the descendents of the Pilgrims and the Cavaliers, of Hendrick Hudson and of Leif Ericson riding through space and bringing new idea as well as new creatures and creations back to enrich the life of our planet.

VOICES OPPOSITION TO ZONING HIS FARM

Dear editor:

Whenever a city gets a certain size, any big enough to have uniformed policemen and one-way streets, the next step naturally is what's called zoning, which, as I understand it, gives the city the right to decide what sort of building can be put up in any given area. The idea started out I think to keep livery stables from going up next door to ice cream parlors and saloons next to churches, and is used now to keep supermarkets from invading residential sections, junk yards away from city parks, etc.

What brought this up was an article I read in a newspaper clipping somebody sent me through the mail, reporting a government official in Washington has demanded that what this country now needs is a nationwide zoning system to prevent further losses of America's agriculturally productive lands.

According to him about a million acres of productive land are being taken for such things as highways, airports and housing projects every year, and he thinks all the land ought to be zoned so this thing can be headed off.

At first thought this was a good idea, anybody can figure a million acres a year, if kept up very long, would eliminate farming and therefore eating, although you can say this for it, certainly would solve the farm problem.

But if Washington gets the right to decide which land can be used for a housing project, which land has to stay in cultivation, it wouldn't be far to the point where it could decide not only which land has to stay in cultivation, but now often. This is where I draw the line.

If city people want to give their city government the right to decide whether you can open a T. V. repair shop in your garage or a beauty shop in your spare room, that's entirely their business, but the last thing I want is Washington zoning this Johnson grass farm and telling me I can't graze cows in my front yard or that my propped up fences and sagging gates don't meet the nation-wide zoning standards.

Yours faithfully,
J. A.

Tour Points Out Blackland Needs

By J. D. Moore
Milam County Agent

Farmers who made the County Crops tour this week were shown definitely that the Blacklands of Central Texas continue to have productive potentials. Demonstrations also pointed out that a complete program must be followed. One demonstration followed recommended practices and did not follow a complete insect control program, as a result the group felt that the value of the money spent for fertilizer would probably be lost due to the failure to control the heavy boll weevil infestation.

The Milam County 7-step cotton committee directed the tour and pointed out demonstrations on upland as well as bottom land where fertility, adapted varieties, planting rates, and insect control will produce a bale per acre while "across the road" farms not having these practices will probably produce a bale of cotton on 4 or 5 acres.

The tour ably pointed out the fact that research information furnished by the Texas A & M Research Program, is adequate and will work if properly used. Farms visited on the tour were Joe and Herman Mueck, of the Salem Community, Antone Moraw, Splawn Community, Wilburn Beckhusen, Buckholts and Walter Iselt and Irvin Fussell of the Thorndale Community.

Ben Spear, agronomist, with A & M Extension Service made the tour. Spears was highly complimentary of the demonstration visited and said that those farms visited had the best crops of cotton, maize and corn, that he had seen this year.

Check Storage Before Harvest Of All Grain

COLLEGE STATION — Advanced planning in checking "on-farm" grain storage may save valuable time during harvest, says W. S. Allen, extension agricultural engineer. Leaky, run down and unclean storage buildings will increase hazards from insect and rodent damage, the two factors usually responsible for the loss of quality in farm storage.

A good storage unit should meet certain standards. The roof should be weather tight, the walls should be strong, sound and rain proof. Any potential water leaks should be patched and caulked to prevent the entry of moisture from the outside. Cover the openings in the walls and gable ends of the buildings with screen wire to keep out rats and birds, and use ¼ inch mesh wire around the tops of wooden bins. Lining the lower part of doors and door openings with strips of metal sheets will keep rats from gnawing holes at the corners. Check the foundations of wooden buildings to be sure they are not decayed and repair any foundation deterioration, Allen says.

Be sure all trash, weeds, and grass are clear from around the bins to help reduce rat population and insect infestation. A poisoning program to control rats and a fumigation program to control insects can be recommended by your county agricultural agent.

Store dry grain or provide equipment for drying the grain in storage. The maximum moisture content for safe storage in Texas is 12 percent in most areas. Establish a checking program to insure that it is dry, free of insects and that quality is being maintained. A little advanced planning and proper supervision will insure a quality store product for later sale or feeding, concludes Allen.

New Farm Trailer License Plates Now Available

AUSTIN — New license plates for farm trailers not used for hire are now available, according to Bob A. Lilly, Texas Farm Bureau legislative director.

Lilly said the Department of Public Safety has advised him that the $5. license tags are now in county tax collectors' offices across the state owners of farm trailers of between 4,000 and 10,000 pounds gross weight must have these tags displayed on their trailers in accordance with a new law passed during the regular session of the 57th Legislature. The law also provides a 30-m.p.h. speed limit, but exempts trailers up to 10,000 pounds gross from brake requirements.

The DPS indicated that it will give trailer owners a "reasonable" period of time to secure the tags before strict enforcement begins, Lilly said. The law became effective with the Governor's signing of House Bill 1062, the farm trailer bill, on May 29, but the new tags were not available until just recently.

Lilly said that the Texas Farm Bureau has been attempting to secure passage of a farm trailer law for several years. He explained that the $5 license cost was a compromise to forestall a veto of the bill.

The TFB legislative director said that the new law was necessary to permit farmers to continue using their trailers to haul farm products. The DPS had warned that it was planning to begin strict enforcement of trailer licensing laws if a special farm trailer law were not enacted this year. Before the new law was passed, farmers were required by law to obtain commercial licenses for trailers over 4,000 pounds gross weight even though they normally use their trailers for only a few weeks each year.

Farmers who fail to obtain tags will be subject to a fine and also must immediately register their trailer as a commercial trailer and obtain a commercial license plate. A commercial license for a 10,000 pound trailer would cost $55.

Two community leaders from the Jones Prairie Community, J. A. Petty, and J. E. McDaniels, attended a Cotton Insect control Demonstration at Austin Thursday. Thirty-four farmers and five agents from other Central Texas Counties were also in attendance.

C. F. Garner, Associate Entomologist for the Texas Extension Service conducted the workshop. The Agents and farmers were given the latest approved recommendations and practices relative to the control of insects in cotton.

Demonstrations and practices were given in making boll weevil counts, boll worm counts, calibration of spray equipment, chemical insecticides, timeliness of spray or dust applications, early and late season control, and follow up activities for best results.

Ben Arnold Cobb Family At Home After Two Weeks Vacation

By Mrs. A. T. Swanzy

Rev. and Mrs. Gerald Cobb and family have returned home after a two weeks vacation.

Rev. and Mrs. Charles Cook and family of Waco were guests of Mrs. Virginia Rice and family Sunday.

Misses Monica Miller and Cathy Collins were candidates in the Junior Farm Bureau Queen contest last Saturday night at the Methodist Church in Cameron.

Monica is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hugo Miller and Cathy is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Collins of Ben Arnold.

Mr. and Mrs. M. D. Swanzy, Mrs. Lillie Strickler, Mrs. Doris Schuetze, and Mrs. Ruby Swanzy were in Austin on Friday to attend funeral services for their nephew and cousin, Bill Powell.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lee Schuetze, Brenda and Karen spent Saturday night and Sunday visiting relatives in Temple.

Leo Yates of Ben Arnold and Diane Whitaker of Marlow were married on July 15 and are at home in Rosebud. Mr. Yates is employed at American Desk in Temple.

Mr. and Mrs. Donnie Rice and family visited relatives here last weekend.

Mr. and Mrs. Billy Jones of Temple visited Mr. and Mrs. George Jones and family over the weekend.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Strickler were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Kraemer of Rosebud.

Jehovah's Witnesses To Hold Meeting At Austin Center

A group of Jehovah's Witnesses from Cameron will attend an assembly of ministers in Austin, August 4-6.

Fred Starnes, presiding minister of the local congregation of Jehovah's Witnesses, stated that nearly 400 are expected to attend from the South - Central section of Texas, representing 15 different congregations.

The theme of "Walk in the Name of Jehovah" has been selected for the gathering and practical demonstrations and suggestions will be given to show Christians the need of making God's name known now in an increasingly tense world.

"There is a need for people to join together and practice Biblical principles," Starnes stated. "Christian assemblies such as this unite followers of Christ against godless Communism, increasing crime and delinquency which constantly threaten our daily life."

Sessions begin at 6:45 August 4 at the S. A. Youth Center, Austin and continue through 6:30 p. m. Sunday August 6. Highlight of the meet will be a talk "The Twentieth Century in Bible Prophecy" by K. R. Savoy of New York, at 3 p. m. Sunday.

GI Insurance Dividends To Go To Veterans

First checks to about 261,680 Texas veterans sharing in the "special" GI insurance dividend began going into the mail today, P. J. Mims, manager of the Veterans Administration Regional Office in Waco said.

He estimated that the total amount of "special" dividends to be paid in Texas would be about $11,902,100. Processing of the "special" dividend payments should be completed around Labor Day.

Veterans can help speed receipt of their "special" dividend checks by not making inquiries since payment is automatic, Mims said. Answering inquiries would divert personnel time from the dividend project, he explained.

About 13,520 Texas veterans holding United States Government Life Insurance (World War I) will receive $1,050,800 in "special" dividends while 248,160 holders of National Service Life Insurance (World War II) will get $9,978,100.

The "special" dividend amounting to $230,000,000 is being paid to 5,000,000 GI insurance policyholders throughout the nation.

"Regular" annual dividend of $258,500,000 was paid to veterans earlier this year. Both the "regular" and "special" dividends are primarily a refund to veteran-policyholders of part of their premium payments.

The refunds are made possible principally because the death rate among policyholders continues to be much lower than the rates upon which the premiums were established by law, he added.

Payments of the "special" dividend was based on consultation with VA's own insurance specialists.

The study of contingency reserves, Mims said, indicated such a dividend could be paid in consonance with sound insurance practices and with no jeopardy to the GI insurance funds.

Payments at the accelerated rate are being made at the direction of the President.
